AI/AN Crime Victims

- American Indians/Alaska Natives (AI/AN) are the victims of violent crime at a rate of two times the national average.¹
- More than four in five AI/AN adults (83 percent) have experienced some form of violence in their lifetime.²
- Over 80% of AI/AN will experience intimate partner violence, sexual violence, or stalking in their lifetime.³
- More than half of AI/AN women (56.1 percent) have experienced sexual violence in their lifetime, and 1 in 7 will experience sexual violence every year.⁴
- When AI/AN experience violent victimization, they are more likely to need services as a result of the victimization and less likely to have access to those services.⁵

What can funding be used for?

- Assess the need for additional programming and services for victims of crime
- Develop a strategic plan to improve or expand existing victim services
- Purchase equipment and supplies necessary for victim services programming
- Provide victim services grant management
- Implement program activities, including personnel costs, to support victims of crimes
- Funding Amounts: Micro-grant awards will not exceed $350,000.

A chart of allowable and unallowable costs can be found at https://tribalvictimservices.org/wp-content/uploads/2020/05/AppendixA_allowablecosts.pdf

Should I apply?

- Do you have a crime victim program?
 - This funding can be used to create one
- If you have crime victim program, what area(s) of service are you currently providing?
- Would you like to expand existing crime victim services?
- Not sure? Consider a Community Needs Assessment and Tribal Justice Strategic Planning.

Additional Considerations:

Should you apply as an:

- Individual tribe
- Consortia
- Designee

Note – Consortia applicant may apply for the maximum award amount of $350,000, no matter the number of tribes represented in the consortium.

Consortia and designee applicants will be asked to provide appropriate authorization documentation prior to receiving an award.

Considerations for Crime Victim Planning

What other crime victim services are in place?

The goal to keep in mind is: How are we building capacity with new funding?

- Domestic Violence shelter
- Coordinated Community Response (CCR) Team
- Sexual Assault Response Team (SART)
- Tribal codes for domestic violence or sexual assault
- Victim-centered tribal codes that define who victims are and their rights

Addressing Gaps in Safety

- How would this funding enhance safety for crime victims, while addressing potential safety risks or gaps? For example:

“The tribe does not have any services in place for elderly crime victims. Our tribe has experienced additional financial crisis with the recent COVID-19 with loss of jobs and our elderly are now more vulnerable to financial or other threats to their safety. Along with our other increased need for victim services, we cannot give an adequate response to our elderly crime victims. We want to hire an elderly victim advocate to work with tribe to get information cards with their meals and provide additional outreach and presentations at the tribe about what we can provide.”

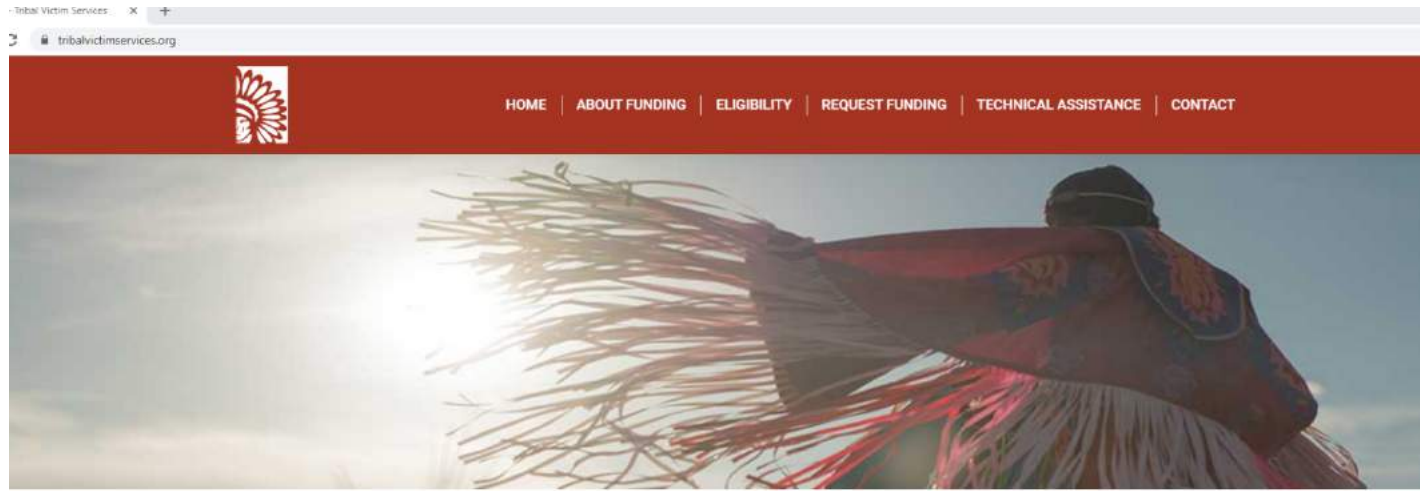

Areas of Service to Consider

- Providing information to crime victims
- Referral services for crime victims
- Victim advocacy/accompaniment
- Law enforcement interview advocacy/accompaniment
- Intervention with employer, creditor, landlord or academic institution
- Child and/or dependent care assistance
- Transportation assistance
- Interpreter services
- Crisis intervention
- Hotline/crisis line counseling
- On-scene crisis response
- Sexual Assault Response Team (SART) team development
- Coordinated Community Response (CCR) team development
- Updating tribal codes for victim services
- Access to Traditional/Cultural Healing ceremonies for victims
- Immigration assistance

Step 2: Final Application

- After completion of Step 1: Statement of Interest by June 26, 2020, eligible applicants will be sent information to complete the Final Application. Applicants will also be contacted by the Tribal Law and Policy Institute for follow up.
- The Final Application will require applicants to identify their target service population and provide a detailed description of potential activities to be funded by a micro-grant.
- The Final Application will only require a summary budget, with a detailed budget to be assessed with technical assistance at a later date.
- Step 2: Final Application will be due: August 21, 2020
